Stay Focused

Staying focused in a world of confusion is not easy. Politics have gone insane, and the brazen abominations of sacrilege, as seen in the Paris opening of the International Olympics, are celebrated by perverts worldwide. It's no longer an American brand of sin-sickness; it is now a "one world fellowship of filthiness."

Staying focused is a challenge, yet the underlying issue is that these events remind us to lift up our eyes, for "OUR REDEMPTION DRAWETH NEAR!"

Situational awareness is the key to maintaining focus today—looking beyond the obvious and reading between the lines.

The race to the end of times is breathtaking.
Stay focused.

I'm writing from my hotel room in Vietnam, where we are graduating hundreds of ministerial students from our Global/REAP University School of Ministry and our K-12 Newman Academy this week. I'm beyond excited about our graduates, who are equipped and ready to take on the challenges of the day. Armed not with the M-16, but with John 3:16! A light in a world of increasing darkness.

Isaiah 60:22 (KJV) states: "A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation: I the LORD will hasten it in His time!" The little country of Vietnam could be the epicenter of the greatest spiritual upheaval in modern times. Why not?

Out of tragedy comes triumph!

Please continue your faithful support of this focused and timely ministry. The U.S. Military Academies are now scheduled in the upcoming weeks. Opportunities abound. I'm ecstatic about the future, totally focused on the prize set before me.

Lastly, this month I'm going in for surgery number 63. It is urgent. The pain is intense. Your support is crucial, as all my speaking fees will be lost for several weeks while I recover. The ministry missions are supported through that income, and it will be difficult without your assistance in giving. Thank you in advance for caring.

The war is over. The pain is not.

Staying focused,

-Dave Roever
